Scottish Air-Mail Letter

Royal Visits To Scotland: Prince of Wales and the Pip New Scottish Judge: Duchess of York as Shipwright: Community Drama

(Special Air-Mail Service)

Edinburgh, Oct. 25.
Scotland is expecting three Royal visits in November.
The Prince of Wales is to meet Scottish Freemasons in Edinburgh during the week after next; the Duke of York has engagements in Edinburgh and at Glasgow on November 10 and 11; Prince George will open the new City-square in Dundee on November 30.
Lord Elgin is arranging the Prince of Wales's visit, with the concurrence of Lord Belhaven, Grand Master Mason of Scotland.
Lord Rosebery (Lord-Lieutenant of Midlothian), Lord Stair, Lord Cassilis, Lord Traprain, Lord Saltoun, Sir Iain Colquhoun and Sir Robert Gilmour will also be in Edinburgh for the occasion.

THE PRINCE AND THE PIPES

Is the Prince of Wales going to take up the pipes? I hear that an order for a practice chanter to be sent to His Royal Highness at York House yesterday came by wire to the well-known firm of bagpipe makers, Peter Henderson, Ltd., of Glasgow, the other day. I think I remember hearing that the Prince had been impressed by the "great Highland bagpipe," to give it its official musical designation, on a previous occasion, and had commissioned a well-known pipe-major to tutor him in the intricacies of the instrument.

FILM POST FOR SCOTS DESIGNER

Mr. David Kidd, a 19-year-old Edinburgh dress designer, has been engaged by Mr. Victor Saville, the Gaumont-British film director, to dress the new film production of "Evergreen."

When Miss Jessie Matthews, the well-known film and stage star, was in Edinburgh, Mr. Kidd submitted a dozen of his designs for her approval, and after consultation with her husband, Mr. Sonnie Hale, Miss Matthews showed the designs to Mr. Saville, suggesting that Mr. Kidd might be able to design dresses for her suitable for the film "Evergreen."

Mr. Kidd was then asked by the Gaumont-British Company to submit another 14 designs for their consideration, the outcome being that when Mr. Saville visited Edinburgh at the week-end he engaged Mr. Kidd to design the dresses for the new production.

Mr. Kidd is already known in theatrical circles as a fashion expert, as he designed some of the dresses worn in last year's Howard and Wyndham pantomime, and he has just completed the work of designing most of the dresses for this year's production.

IN GLASGOW

There is a great deal of music and opera in the family tree of Miss Ellen Moody who makes her first appearance in Glasgow with the D'Oyly Carte Opera Company in the Gilbert and Sullivan fortnight that opens at the (King's) Theatre next week. She is a daughter of Professor Moody and a niece of Miss Fanny Moody, who married Charles Manners, of Grand Opera fame. Her uncle, indeed, was the original Private Willis in "Tolanthe." Miss Moody shares the leading soprano roles with Miss Muriel Dickson (of Edinburgh).

NEW SCOTTISH JUDGE

Mr. Craigie Mason Aitchison, K.C., who was formerly Lord Advocate, was installed in the Court of Session, Edinburgh, yesterday as Lord Justice Clerk, with the title of Lord Aitchison. At the same ceremony Mr. W. G. Normand, K.C., the new Lord Advocate, and Mr. Douglas Jamieson, the new Solicitor-General for Scotland, presented their commissions to Lord Clyde, the Lord President.

DR. T. Z. KOO TO VISIT SCOTLAND

Dr. T. Z. Koo, one of the leaders of Young China and an outstanding figure in the Chinese Christian Church, arrived in London yesterday at the invitation of the Universities' China Committee.

In the next six weeks Dr. Koo will visit various towns in Scotland and England, addressing student and other audiences on aspects of Chinese life.
"Young people in China to-day are up against real things," he stated in an interview. "It used to be easy to talk about nationalism and Christianity, peace and war, when there was no real conflict. Now young Christians are faced with a concrete situation in which they have to make definite decisions." Dr. Koo always wears Chinese costume. In 1929 he spent some time in Oxford studying theology and the theory of government.

DUCHESS OF YORK AS SHIPWRIGHT

The Duchess of York will be admitted to the freedom of the Shipwrights' Company at a dinner, of the ancient guild at the Mansion House next Friday. The Duke of York, the permanent Master of the "mystery," will preside.
As early as 1498 the fraternity of the shipwrights of London was referred to as having existed for "some out of mind." It has been considerably affected in modern times by the absence of shipbuilding on the Thames, and is without a hall of its own.

"KINGDOM OF SCOTLAND"

Designs which have been submitted for use on stamps and then rejected were on view in the West End. These unsuccessful and, in some cases, fantastic efforts numbered nearly 100, being the results of schemes in many different countries during the last 30 years. One came from a Scot, who advocated Home Rule—although he lived permanently in Australia. The design was made up of thistles, artistically etched in purple and entwined round the words "Kingdom of Scotland." Another, diverting thought came from an obscure island in the South Seas, a half-breed having designed a beautiful little picture of three palm trees and a sketch of said. Accepted designs could be seen in a neighbouring case and handed towards usefulness rather than art.

COMMUNITY DRAMA IN SCOTLAND.

The growth of the community drama movement in Scotland is indicated in the annual report of the Scottish Community Drama Association which has been issued on the eve of a new season aimed at being by far the busiest in the history of the movement.
Last year the total number of festival scenes was 307, and of that number 27 were productions of original plays. The total entry was an increase of 48 over the previous year.
This year, for the first time, a complete chain of drama festivals has been established from the Borders to the Orkneys. "It is now ready to extend the festival activities to the Shetlands and the Hebrides," is the comment of the Association.

NEW SCOTTISH K.C.

The King, on the recommendation of the Secretary of State for Scotland, to whom the name was submitted by the Lord Justice General, has approved of the rank and dignity of King's Counsel to his Majesty in Scotland being conferred on Mr. John Swan Mercer, advocate.

SMOKE ELIMINATION SHOWN IN ENGLAND

Successful Demonstration Of New Device

Jarrow, Eng.—A successful demonstration of a new method of eliminating smoke was made here recently. The inventor is Mr. James Garvie.
When the device was put into operation on a steam launch using coal which produced very black smoke, the smoke entirely disappeared.
Electrodes are employed to impinge turbulent columns of air onto the coal. The air mixes with the gases and forms a highly combustible gas, which burns in contact with the coal as long as the gases are being formed.
It is claimed also that there is a saving in coal consumption as shown North Country coal can be used instead of the high quality coal.

HEAVY GALE IN ATLANTIC

Two British Ships in Danger

London, Nov. 16.
Two British ships, the "Saxilby," 3,630 tons, and the "St. Quentin," 3,528 tons, were reported in difficulties in a heavy gale in the Atlantic, yesterday morning.
The "Saxilby" sent out a wireless message requesting immediate assistance, and a later message stated that the crew were trying to launch the ship's boats.
Early in the afternoon, a brief wireless message stated that the "Saxilby" had been abandoned.
Among the several vessels reported to be rushing to the assistance of her crew, is the liner, "Berengaria."
The "Saxilby's" position was given as 500 miles west of Ireland. She was on her way from Newfoundland with a cargo of iron ore to Port Talbot. She carries a crew of 27 and news regarding them is eagerly awaited.
The "St. Quentin" was yesterday evening reported by her owners to have sustained damage to her steering gear, 300 miles west of Valentia, Ireland, while on her way to Montreal with a cargo of anthracite.
She was then waiting for the weather to moderate before repairs could be effected. The owners state that she is not in any danger.—British Wireless Service.

FEMININITY THE KEYNOTE OF PARIS WINTER COLLECTIONS

By OUR RESIDENT WOMAN CORRESPONDENT
 PARIS

Molyneux made charming feminine clothes for his winter collection. To his way of thinking the slim line is inevitable, and he makes it slimmer by the use of points. He points the hems of his evening skirts, lets pointed incru-stations into hips and backs, both of which ruses give height and slimmess to the figure.

The skirts fit close until below the knees when they flow and droop about the feet and ankles.
 His velvet, dinner dresses have pointed trains, and the cut of the décolleté has that drooping, elegance which gives the grande dame air to all his evening dresses.
 Molyneux makes for women who "dress" every night, not only when they are going out to dine or dance.

He uses velvet, fine lace, both soft and stiff, satin, crepe, stamped chiffon velvet, and chiffon. For his wraps, he chooses cloque, quilted crepe, velvet, fur, Ottoman silk and net. He plays with feathers, aigrettes, and paradise plumes, and he uses flowers on the shoulder and at the back of the waist.

He likes colours and gets that feeling of shady flower gardens into his collection of evening clothes which is so pleasing and characteristic.

DAYTIME WEAR

For the morning, Molyneux makes slim skirts, not very long easy fitting tops, and long sleeves wide above the wrist, Chinese fashion, and his shoulder trimmings are frequently detachable. Little capes, are drawn over the arms.
 There are pointed plastrons, back and front, and sleeveless waistcoats in fur or velvet. His jac-kets have basques, fitting, or with slight spring at the side. His long coats may be slim and straight, with a belt, and the fur huddled about the shoulders or they may be more than three-quarter length and loose-fitting, with big collar and wide sleeves.

Linings are handsome. Furs are magnificent.

He has a felt hat with a brim which is after the Tyrolean shape, but not a true copy.

Dull greys, dark browns, black and dark red are among his colours for the daytime. For evening, as I have said before, he loves softly bright and glowing colours when he does not use black.

Molyneux has plenty of amusing little shoulder capes and scarves which he drapes a sa facon. He makes muffs, small and round, large and flat. He is not obsessed by the idea of architecture; rather, he holds to that indescribable thing called charm, and would have a woman dress with that in mind.

Schlaparelli has almost sold—anyway she has lent—her soul to China, not the China of to-day, perhaps, but the old China with its dignity and aloofness as it is revealed to us in old pictures.

COLLARS AND CUFFS

The Vogue for frilled and fluted cuffs and collarettes continues through the Autumn with dresses of silk it is best to wear these accessories in organdie—but for wool dresses cuffs and collars of heavy silk or silk crepe are best. If a plainer style is desired the correct material is (of course) white pique.

CHINESE INFLUENCE

Schlaparelli must have drunk her fill of the Chinese pictures in the exhibition which was held in Paris last spring. She shows in many little ways the influence it had on her.

She puts stiff, pagoda flounces at the feet, she makes a pagoda hat, she uses materials which are copied or inspired from Chinese robes.
 There is a trailing, stiff simplicity in the lines of her evening dresses which come direct from China.

Her morning clothes are different. Cube-like skirts are short; blouses, bodices and jackets are drawn up at the waist-line in front.

She puts on the head either a funny little hat such as those which have already had a great vogue this year, or she dares to ask us to wear big, brimmed felt with a high, soft crown, which is something between a cowboy's and a Hoinburg. She trims it high with a flat feather or a ribbon bow, and she sets it a little to one side. I wonder if she really likes it. There is a touch of humour in it.

Her colours and materials are interesting. She uses bright red quilted silks for evening capes, and puts them with silver grey satin.
 She has a heavy jersey silk for day, which she uses in black and in dull colours.

Her black gauze with a flower on it is charming for afternoon dresses.
 Her lacquer satins in blue and silver, black and gold, are lovely for the evening. Her quite simple little frocks in crepe of her own designing are delightful, and she still huddles scarves and plastrons about shoulders and throats.

MORE DECORATIVE HAIR-DRESSING STYLES WITH EVENING GOWNS

The cropped head is doomed.

The Bronte Sisters Influence Coiffure

Romantic hair-dressing in vogue again.

What an expert on women's fashions throughout the ages calls the "angular" or romantic period in dress is to persist throughout the thirties and forties of this century and already hairdressing fashions for the evening are altering to suit wide shoulders, tiny waists and long skirts.

The shingle and Eton crop belonged to the "vertical" or postwar emotionally exhausted period, and had nothing romantic about them.

The Economic Conference is no doubt partly responsible for a hairdressing fashion for the evening in which coils of hair are massed on top of the head in Burmese style. Directoire influence is perceptible in a fashion for those who still possess long hair.

It consists of a double flat-topped down below the ear and "topped up again in a bun" at the back.
 This is also the style of hairdressing adopted by the Bronte sisters. Real flowers are being worn by many smart young married women in their hair, or they can be attached to a shoulder curls in the romantic style that would suit a sub-tubante.

Crooked partings to show off a beautifully-shaped head, hair taken off the ears to give a higher line, and curls set on top of a long swathed shingle are features of the season's programme in a hairdressing salon presided over by one of the most expert cutters in London. He will not countenance rolls of hair on the nape of the neck save for debutants in their first season, but curls hair about halfway up the back of the head.

Young girls at this salon have no wave on top of their heads given them, and if they have a good head the their partings may be taken deliberately crooked ly either to the right or to the left.

 In this case the only wave is made away from the parting over the ears.

In Dover-street another hairdressing expert plans a different coiffure for each woman with her evening dresses in mind, and he requires to be told the details of the gowns and the line.

For an inclusive fee, plastic oil paint hairdressing in gold, silver and all colours is applied to the hair after a shampoo and set in the evening and washed off the next morning. In the salon where this is done, the general lines of hairdressing are on plastic curls, neat long waves and little flat curled side pieces against the forehead to break any monotony. The "meche" of white hair made popular by a lovely ex-debutante is now being copied in platinum blonde, or it can be "painted" on in white.

THE MODERN WAY WITH THE MODERN FIGURE

For the past twelve months our silhouettes have been steadily changing. We have been letting out a little here and drawing in a little there.

Yet now that autumn is really upon us, with its crop of lovely mannequins all wearing the new corsets under the new frocks, it is something of a shock to find that we must acquire new figures at once if the Frocks and hats of to-day are not to take an air of yesterday.

Real waists at the height nature intended them to be and a firm uplifted bust-line are now essential.

Luckily the makers of garments destined to mould us into the right lines have been just as busy as the dress designers; they knew all about this definite change into womanliness before it happened, and most of their factories have been working overtime to be ready for it. (Perhaps they had something to do with inspiring it.)

MUST BE INVISIBLE

Invisible fastenings or no fastenings at all, invisible boning when any, different shapes for different uses, distinguish all the best makes.

That, you must understand, is one of the points about foundation garments, belt and brassieres, that the really modern women with an economical mind must note. It is sheer idiocy to wear the same thing day in and day out, for sports, housework, lounging, dancing. In the sensible woman's wardrobe there are at least three different types.

And it is no less a mark of stupidity to wear out-worn foundations that no longer exercise any control, even in the house in your off moments, or to boast that you can do very well without any control at all, or to wear an out-of-date model.

Whatever make of figure control garment you prefer, you will find this autumn a more definite waistline or brassiere top. The newest Charnaux inventions are nearly all made to give a choice of three fastenings in addition to a pull-on. They have sidehooking, side-lacing and zipp fasteners.

Personally, for the new line, I prefer the sidelacing, except in their model B, which is forreducing purposes and given a back-lacing for additional strength.
Their new Caslis brassiere is cut on an arc so that it clings to the body, has two net cups with a latex point running up between them and fastens at the waist behind. I give the new moulded breast effect.

Of course you know that these are distant and most aristocratic relatives of that abomination, the rubber corset, boned and laced, that women wore when slimming first set in upon us. Only they are made of electrically deposited latex, the pure milk of the rubber tree, and perforated in thousands of holes to create bands of force just where a little pressure is needed.

Round
the TownSeen this Week in Local ShopsLANE CRAWFORD LTD.

There was a great display of gloves at the Ladies Salon when I looked in early this week. In preparation for the winter functions there is a new consignment of long white evening gloves in all sizes. Made of soft and flexible kid these gloves seemed to me very reasonable at only $17.75 for full shoulder length. Elbow length gloves cost rather less. For wear with dark-hued evening gowns a charming glove in beige suede is most suitable and for extra-special occasions there is a dainty and unusual glove prettily pierced in lace pattern.

Motoring gloves in heavy pigskin with pig gauntlets wear for ever, and a brown gauntlet glove lined with beaver is beautifully warm and cosy.

A pretty sports glove in lighter make can be got for $10.75 in three charming shades of green, red or blue.

There are also some dainty evening shoes to be seen, including some coloured and patterned faillie in several pretty shades for those who like shoes and dress to match. Those who prefer contrast will fall for the smart little black satin shoes strapped with silver and the ornamental pleated silver sandals. Black faillie with the new spiked heel adds at least two inches on to your height...so short girls please make a note of this.

DOLLY VARDEN HAT SHOP

There are lots of charming Catalina hats at Dolly Vardens this week. I wonder how many women realise that a Catalina hat is never duplicated...Each hat is an individual model and when you invest in one of them you can go to any party without fear of seeing your hats-twin, perched on somebody else's head.

Black hats are popular this autumn because they go with everything, but I was most attracted by some adorable little velvet caps in flame, cerise and golden brown which would look just right with heavy autumn coats, and becoming at all hours...velvet is always so flattering to all complexions.

THE FELIX HAT SHOP

There are some lovely evening gowns to be got at the Felix Autumn Sale, and they are marvellously cheap. I saw most alluring little frock in flounced and frilled georgette in a beautiful wine shade for...can you believe it?...just twenty dollars.

A most exquisite "neglige" also caught my eye...in shimmering satin cut on slender lines it looked as if it was meant for some Parisian boudoir, and needed no accessories to complete it, as it could be slipped on in one moment was fastened at the waist by a beautiful flower-ornament of shaded satin. Quite the loveliest thing I have seen for some time had the real Ellnor Glyn touch.

Some new dresses and hats were just being unpacked and they were so extremely smart and charming that I longed to stay and try some of them on. I have no doubt that by this time they are on view in the window.

WHITEAWAY LAIDLAW

Do you want a wedding present? If so pay a visit to the glass and China department and view the marvellous new Wine-Sets in iridescent glass. They are wonderful, and a complete set can be got for sixty-five dollars which includes Sherry, Port, champagne and liqueur glasses, as well as tumblers and Sundae-glasses. This lovely new glass should be seen.

For a simple Xmas gift I saw sweet little sets of ordinary tinted glass in pretty shades of claret, blue, lemon and old gold with a big water jug and six tumblers.

A very nice high chair for the nursery was just being unpacked as I passed through the furnishing department. It was of nicely polished oak and had a tray complete with a row of bright play-balls which help to keep impatient children happy at nursery mealtimes. Modern rugs can be got at sets now, complete drawing-room set consists of one large and two small rugs and costs $80 there are many different designs and colours.

MISS NAYLOR IMPORTER OF DRESSES

Some adorable American evening gowns have just been unpacked at Miss Naylor's and some of them are in the lovely pansy-purple which are popular just now, and which are so conducive to good looks. These soft graduated shades make fair people look dazzling and dark people look mysterious, and the styles are very "last-moment" pretty sleeves and novel backs make these dresses worth seeing.
Miss Naylor also has some exquisite black dresses which are very chic. Every Parisian knows the value of black (and few French-women care to be without a black dress on which to make a "great effect" on some special occasion).
Dead black with a collar or novel tie of pure white is most attractive for day-time wear.

CHILDREN'S SHOESSlimmer Feet

While talking to an expert on children's footwear recently she gave me an interesting little bit of information.

It is noticeable, she said, that children brought into this department have slimmer feet and smaller ankles than the children of, say, ten years ago.

Winter fashions for girls include a new monk shoe that is suitable for wet and cold weather.

Some new dumpy heeled shoes are specially designed for girls of fourteen to sixteen years who frequently do not want to wear flat-heeled shoes when they are nearing school-leaving age. Though they would like the high-heeled variety, "like mother wears," they are not good for growing feet.

LOOK TWICE AT THAT SHIRT!

The first casual glance, when you are not the least little bit "shirt-minded," so to speak, tells your sub-conscious brain that that necessary piece of men's wear is out of the ordinary. You look again. It is. It's an article of very definite attraction...distinctive yet essentially within the bounds of style and artistry; it belongs to the wearer, in more ways than one. There is a personality about that shirt, a smartness, a—well, it looks good...The wearer is clearly a man of judgment and character; his whole appearance is in harmony with that happy faculty that tells him a Viyella shirt is "correct."

There's not only style and elegance there, but true comfort. Viyella absorbs moisture only to radiate it; its colours are wash-proof and sun-proof, its fabric quite unshrinkable; and its designs are London's latest.

There is no material quite the same as Viyella—none that even fussy men, or particular wives will so readily "O.K."

From first class stores throughout the East. If any difficulty, please write

Changing China

Autumn Quarter

A quarterly non-political review of life and conditions in China.

"... Changing China is an interesting and useful quarterly. The articles which it contains have been written in the form of letters by men and women of various ranks of life who are living in the interior of China.
The reader gets a picture or rather a series of pictures of life in Modern China, and at the same time a resumé of the progress made in industrial development during the past quarter..."

Published By HONG KONG DAILY PRESS, LTD.

AS OTHER SEE US.

The following is taken from the "TIMES" LITERARY SUPPLEMENT dated 18th October, 1933.

CHANGING CHINA. A Quarterly Non-Political Review of Life and Conditions in Modern China.
Vol. 1, No. 1, April, 1933, 128 pp. Vol. 2, No.
2, July, 1933, 128 pp. 7 x 4 1/2. Hongkong Daily Press (43, Fleet Street, E.C. 4), 1s. 6d. n. e. ch.

In a preface, note the editor explains that the purpose of this newly established quarterly is to keep a record of the progress of events in all parts of China and, by disseminating a fuller knowledge of the country's actual conditions and needs, to assist in the promotion of trade and a better understanding between East and West. To this end, qualified correspondents in every province have undertaken to supply reports, commentaries, and forecasts. The first two numbers contain several articles on interesting subjects—e.g., the industrial development of the Kwang provinces, the spread of Communism, the condition of the native cotton industry, and the mind of Young China.

AIR CONTROL IN FOG

Zone Scheme For Croydon

A scheme for controlling aircraft traffic at Croydon aerodrome during foggy weather is shortly to be put into operation, at first on a voluntary basis, but later compulsorily.

The operating companies, British and foreign, have acquiesced in the scheme, which was described by Major R. E. S.
Mealing, Chief Technical Assistant, Civil Aviation, Air Ministry, in a paper read before the Royal Aeronautical Society last night.

When visibility is only 1,000 yards horizontal and 1,000 feet vertical, or less, the zone system will automatically come into force, and all aircraft will, so far as it is possible, be notified by wireless. It is expected that pilots who cannot be so informed will judge for themselves as to the conditions and will act accordingly.

The zone is approximately an area of ten miles round Croydon, and within that area aircraft will, during the operation of the scheme, be permitted to fly only with the permission of the control officer.

No Prescribed Route.

No attempt will be made to instruct aircraft to follow a certain route, but incoming aircraft will be permitted to follow a certain route only so long as they do not endanger any other machine, and failing their ability to do so, they will be ordered to lay-off the zone until such time as some other route is permissible.

No outgoing aircraft will be permitted to leave Croydon except in such manner as to make it impossible to endanger any incoming machine.

Priority must, of course, always be given to the aircraft in flight, and not over the incoming one.
Major Mealing stated that there have been occasions when as many as twenty machines have been approaching Croydon at the same time, so that it has been no easy matter to sort them out and communicate directions to them. There have also been occasions when there have been serious congestion at Lympne.
There are in existence apparatus and control systems which

SIGHT-SEEING IN LONDON

A Disconcerting
View Point

A day's sight-seeing in London by motor coach is described by a correspondent of the "Daily Telegraph." We quote from the article:

"That is the statue of King Charles the First," the Official guide confided at the top of his voice, as we passed through Trafalgar square. "They took his head off in 1649, and it's off yet." At Hanover-square he pointed out St.
George's Church, "where the great big weddings take place. I showed you the Divorce Court this morning."

We moved along swiftly. "The Marble Arch is on your left," went on our mentor, "and there is Tyburn. That's the place where they used to hang 'em—right in front of the policeman."

"How very disconcerting for the policeman!" exclaimed an Irish lady before she realised that the reference to the man in blue on traffic duty was made merely to indicate the spot where the executions took place.
On we sped, to catch a glimpse in Baywater-road of the dogs' cemetery and the smallest house in London, before arriving at the Albert Memorial. "You must see this," said the guide, and obediently we trooped out of the coach in the blazing sunshine and up the steps.
"Notice the sculptured figures, all round the base! All distinguished figures, and only one of the whole one hundred and ninety-five of them is a woman. She was Queen Nitro-cris, who built one of the Pyramids."

IN THE ABBEY.
More sights, and then we came to the Abbey. Here the guide had full scope, and we attracted to ourselves a host of other tourists, mostly foreign, with guide books, maps, and cameras. Not many could understand more than a few words of English, but open-mouthed they listened to our guide's description:

"Ben Johnson. He was buried there standing up..... If we had been here four hundred years ago we would have seen the monks going to midnight service, each carrying his lighted candle through that door..... That's the spot at which Princess Mary and the Duchess of York were married.....
"Here is old Charles Darwin. He thinks we are all descended from monkeys. I don't..... Observe this stone over the grave of Thomas Parr. He lived to be one hundred and fifty, and was a bachelor until he was ninety-nine, when he met a girl and had seven children....."

On and on we went, until at last we were in the Chapter House.
This surely provides London's strangest daily sight. You go into that wonderful place with its slender central column supporting graceful rafters that open out like the ribs of an umbrella. And here, in the cradle of all the Parliaments, you can now walk on the priceless tiles.

But no risks are taken. At the door stands an official who looks at your feet and hands you a pair of rubber shoes, which are slipped on over your own.
But the tour is nearly over. We re-enter the coach for a brief journey. And as we do, so the guide points out the statue of Oliver Cromwell. "You'll notice," he says, "that his spurs are on upside down!"

LANDOWNERS NEED AID IN BRITISH COLUMBIA

Government Asked For Tax Moratorium

Victoria, B. C.—A concerted drive has been launched by property owners in the larger centres of British Columbia to prevent the reversion of their homes to municipalities for non-payment of taxes this fall. At interviews with the Government, representatives of many rate payers' organizations declared that unless action were taken to prevent it, large areas of land in Vancouver, Victoria and other leading cities would be sold for taxes. The Government was asked to declare a moratorium on taxes for those who could not pay, as on the interest on mortgages. The Government replied that it had no legal power to interfere with municipal tax sales nor to void mortgage contracts. Relief for property owners in one form or another will undoubtedly be one of the chief problems discussed by the Assembly.

make it possible to control the movements of aircraft in flight in thick fog with great precision, and which enable them even to take off and land in thick fog.
But they have not yet been brought to such perfection as to enable them to operate with complete success when many aircraft are flying on the same route at the same time.

NEW PEAK FOUND IN PACIFIC

Called "Lost Land"

Seattle.—The recent discovery of a second mountain peak under the ocean west of the Pacific coast strengthens the theory of geologists that western California, Oregon, Washington and British Columbia were once the bottom of an inland sea while to the west of them stretched a great chain of mountains now romantically known as "the lost land of Cascadia."

The first submarine mountain was discovered 150 miles off Point Bar, California, and the second more recently, was discovered by the hydrographic bureau of the Navy Department about the same distance off the coast of British Columbia.

The commanding officer of the hydrographic bureau's cutter, "Tacoma," discovered the "peak" when his vessel received an earthquake shock while in what he believed to be extremely deep water. Realizing that earthquakes can only be felt in shallow water, he proceeded to take soundings and found bottom at 16 fathoms or 90 feet.

The sides of the shoal fell off abruptly indicating that it was a peak dropping off into surrounding submarine valleys.

Prof. G. E. Goodspeed, of the department of geology of the University of Washington, says that deposits of sedimentary material such as sandstone and shale along the western coast, first established the theory that this land was submerged at one time, receiving sedimentary deposits from a land mass to the west, the land now being discovered under the ocean.

Many thousands of years ago according to geologists, Cascadia faulted from this continent, breaking off and sinking beneath the ocean, the pressure exerted on the earth's crust being sufficient to up-heave the surface of the inland sea and make dry land of it. It is possible also that the great pressure exerted by the faulting Cascadia, opened the earth's crust and caused a flow of lava, which formed the present Cascade Mountains.

CARL BRISSON FOR

£1,000 A Week

London, Oct. 28.

Carl Brisson, the matinee idol of musical comedy, has signed a contract with Paramount Pictures for the biggest salary ever paid to any European actor.The actual figure has not been disclosed, but I understand that it is in the neighbourhood of £1,000 a week.Brisson will sail for Hollywood early in December, and he will probably play a fighting role in his first picture.This should suit him, as the big Dane was at one time middleweight champion of Middle Europe.When I spoke to him yesterday he told me that he was quite satisfied with his contract."I am not leaving England because I cannot get the salary I want here," he said, "but because

"HOLD YOUR MAN"Queen's Theatre's Coming FilmThe reunion of Jean Harlow and Clark Gable in "Hold Your Man," showing from Sunday at the Queen's Theatre is Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's answer to the exhibitor's prayer.Ever since the smashing success of their romantic teamwork in "Red Dust," it was inevitable that Miss Harlow and Gable should play a return engagement on the screen.

THOSE WARM INTERLUDES

Whatever it takes to put romance on the screen, Harlow and Gable have it. More dramatic than most stories on this order, the new picture nevertheless packs warm interludes bound to keep the matinee seats full so long as the film shows.
There is no doubt that this pair are the most popular lovers on the screen to-day.Even if for no other reason than its palpitating romance, "Hold Your Man" is a cinch at the box office. But it is replete, by way of further interest, with a stimulating story that has as its climactic background the interior of a women's reform school. Here, Jean discards the fiery of her earlier appearances for the starchy denim of a prison uniform. Gable as the man whose kisses get her in all the trouble, also lands in jail and the ultimate happy ending comes when they are released and started on new paths to happiness.Sam Wood, always certain of his cast and story, has done a splendid job with the original story by Anita Loos. He has kept up the swift pace he established in the opening of the picture and held tight rein on the obvious impulse to overplay the smashing dramatic moments. It is this brevity and dispatch of dealing with the plot that adds tempo and suspense to the picture.

STUART ERWIN SCORES

You will be surprised, and delighted, to see Stuart Erwin playing a serious and sympathetic role, although not without comedy moments. As the honest, sincere chap who wants to marry the gaudy underworld girl, even with full knowledge of her love-life, Erwin acquits himself with touching genuineness. Dorothy Burgess also is cast in a prominent supporting role, as the brunette rival of the platinum blonde for Gable's love.Other names meriting ample praise are Muriel Kirkland, Garry Owen, Barbara Baxendale, Paul Hurst, Elizabeth Patterson, Theresa Harris, Blanche Friderici and George Reed.Nor should we forget the catchy "torch" song that runs through the picture. It is called "Hold Your Man" and was written by Nacio Herb Brown and Arthur Freed.
Miss Harlow sings it in one of the sequences as well.

Coming to the King's Cycles may come and cycles may go, but the age-old love story of the man and woman who fight their way to happiness together, overcoming all obstacles, remains basically the greatest and most satisfactory screen theme.It all depends upon the way and by whom the story is told.So declared Mary Pickford, who considered more than thirty vehicles, including stage plays, best-selling novels and screen originals, before the chose "Secret," which comes to the King's, on Sunday as the story best calculated to prove of universal appeal."Secret" is a simple love story, according to Miss Pickford, a down-to-earth romance of plain people, without so-called sophistication, wisecracks or "daring situations."There's an elopement to foil a rich American father who wants his daughter to wed a titled Englishman instead of a poor clerk; a young couple battling the hardships of western ranch life; battles with castle rustlers; the rearing of a family; eventual prosperity clouded by the husband's affair with another woman; a loyal devoted wife who refuses to let threatened scandal wreck their happiness.

"NIGHT AFTER NIGHT"Sparkling Film At
The Queen'sThe current attraction at the Queen's Theatre is a sparkling film and it is a pity the picture has been put on such a short run. The story is good, the cast is good, and it has no dull moments. On the contrary it is full of life and interest and went very well indeed at all yesterday's performances.The story is an unusual one.
George Raft is the proprietor of a glittering resort that was once a handsome residence. Constance Cummings is the girl who lived there, and comes night after night to try and recapture the old memories. George falls in love with her, but as George is also in love with several other girls at the same time, only to a lesser degree, the plot begins to look promising.The film depicts what life in a speakeasy is like and as pretty and charming girls form an essential part of it, there are sure to be many who would want to see it.Among the supporting cast is Alison Skipworth, in the role of a school teacher who is out for a fling. Alison Skipworth needs no introduction to the public here, and in "Night after Night" she lives up to her high reputation.The remainder of the programme is also very attractive and cinemagoers will find plenty of interest in Screen Souvenir and in Paramount Pictorial. Both are novel-

At King's Theatre

By George! Here's a funny man who is really funny. George Gee, the star of the British Lion film "Cleaning Up," which is now showing at the King's Theatre, is guaranteed to make even the most hardened flinggoer rock with laughter with his antics and amusing facial expressions."Cleaning Up" is a story of a scion of a noble house who refuses to marry a wealthy heiress, and would rather break all the traditions of the family by working. He gets a job as a vacuum cleaner salesman, and after many laughable escapades becomes involved with a chorus girl, poses as her husband, and with his vacuum cleaner gets on the stage by accident. The cleaner company finances the show as an advertisement as long as he will appear as the leading comedian.The many screamingly funny situations in "Cleaning Up," makes it one of the most amusing films that has been seen in this Theatre for some time. Other leading players in the cast are Betty Astell, Davy Burnaby, Barbara Gott and Muriel George.

DRIFTWOOD

By The Beachcomber

A sea port is like a woman, one day it is teeming with energy and life and the next it is languid.
Yesterday the waterfront was in lively mood and the number of ships arriving far exceeded the average.The first boat to dock was the P. and O. steamer Sirdhana under the Command of Capt. J. H. Longhurst. She had very few first class passengers on board and none dis-embarking at this port.The Pembrokehire had three travellers on her very well known

Captain Acock, who is returning from leave in England, Mrs. W.
Young, wife of the well known Singapore surgeon and a leader in the social set of that community and Rev. C. W. McDonnell, who is returning from London to Peking, where he is in charge of the Anglican Cathedral. Mr. Mc-Donnell has been connected with missions and missionary work in North China and is the author of two books.The old chestnut about the train conductor who telegraphed to his superior, "On again, off again," might well be applied to Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Arden who arrived yesterday by the Pacific. These two passengers represent some of the largest manufacturers of woollen goods in Great Britain, and their business forces them to spend ten months out of every year away from home.
They are leaving for the north but will be returning to the colony shortly, and before reaching England again will have travelled on nineteen different vessels. Annually this is quite a record for a man and wife.The Countess arrived at midthe leading character portrayed by John Barrymore in the dramatic comedy of that name, produced by RKO-Radio Pictures and playing at the Central Theatre to-day.As the naive and thoroughly honest French schoolmaster who becomes the dupe of some clever and polished rascals and then outwits them at their own game, John Barrymore is said to have an opportunity for comedy even surpassing his "Man From Blankley's" and a chance for characterization equal to anything he has ever done.As adapted by Benn W. Levy from the French play by Marcel Pagnol, "Topaze" had a successful run on New York's Broadway. It was also a European success. Paris

£250,000 Orders For India

Britain is the home of the locomotive and the pioneer of railway enterprise. For a century past British-built locomotives have been sent to many parts of the world. Millions of pounds have been paid in wages to engineers and mechanics for their construction.To-day the locomotive industry of Britain is employing less than 20 per cent. of the number it employed in 1928, which was itself considered a bad year. A prominent member of the Locomotive Manufacturers' Association stated that the whole of the current trade could be carried on in one of the smaller manufacturing shops.Two causes of the stagnation of a typically British industry are quoted at once. They are that the four railway companies build practically the whole of their engine requirements to-day, and cater for the smaller lines which they absorb. Orders by the Government of India, ordinarily placed with British builders, are going to the Hungarian State railways at uneconomic prices. During the past year orders to the value of £250,000 for boilers, cylinders, conversion parts, tyres, wheels and axles have been placed with men as they came ashore in the boats, lifting their voices in jubi-

ECHOES OF 1859

50—Macao "Annoyed" At The Daily Press

JUNE 17, 1859.

The swarthy denizens of the holy City of Macao were thrown into a state of wonderment and merriment, or as Matthews used to have it "exprise and extonishment" at the appearance of our Extra on Friday last, which contained a translation in Portuguese of Mr. Bernardino Fernandes' affidavit on which a rule nisi was moved against us for libel and granted. These sentiments of amazement were principally confined to the male portion of the community who gave vent to their feelings in a variety of modes and gestures. Some rammed their hands or rather their arms into their pockets as hard as they could, at the same time attempting to elevate their shoulders over the tops of their heads—some who wore spectacles would look up to heaven like a "duck in a thunder," and relieve themselves by an inaudible whistle—whilst those who were corpulent would loudly laugh to the tune of Oh-oh, until they made the welkin ring.

A great portion of the Portuguese community felt highly indignant at their credulity being so heavily taxed on rather a tender point—these would shake their heads, and were clearly, like the sailor's parrot, "devil's to think," but there were not a few who were seized with admiration at the greatness and consistency of Bernardino's character, and conceived he had every chance of proving black was white in Hongkong as he had so often done in Macao. Some expressed the fear that he would fall as the law in Hongkong was very different to what it was in Macao—others were encouraged by the hope that evidence could only be procured against him at Macao, where people dared not come forward, and that he had secured all the Hongkong lawyers and papers too, except the "Daily Press." It was pretty generally known that we had come to Macao to procure the necessary evidence, but the fact of our having been imprisoned for speaking the truth for a period of six months and fined besides £100 or to be further imprisoned until such fine should be paid, made us appear as a very small potato, causing Bernardino's chances of success to be considered very much stronger.

Amongst those whose feelings found vent in loud laughter, was a loquacious corpulent citizen named Francisco P. de Silva, an individual whom the Chinese love to honour by a variety of soubriquets. Such as Chico, Chow-Chow, Chico, Ally and the like. This Chico is at present the manager of the gambling farm, and is therefore in a position highly advantageous for studying the light and shades of Bernardino's character. His admiration of the man upon perusing his affidavit taken in a British Court, not for the purpose of defence but attack, was too much for Chico, and caused his love of merriment and gossip to run away with his wonted discretion and circumspection. In the affidavit Bernardino distinctly avers that he was in no way interested, either directly, or indirectly, in the gambling monopoly—Chun Ahoy a Chinese friend of Chico had two documents which placed this aversment in a very questionable light. One was a farewell address which Bernardino made to his constituents (the holders of licenses for gambling tables) upon his losing the monopoly by being overbid—the other was a license granted by Bernardino himself to a gambling table during the period he held the monopoly.

Street Sleepers Shelter SocietySIR HENRY POLLOCK'S APPEAL FOR FUNDS AND VOLUNTEERS

In making an appeal to the public of Hong Kong and Kowloon on behalf of the "Street Sleepers Shelter Society" last night, from Z.W.B. Sir Henry Pollock began:

Good evening, everybody. I want to say something about the Street Sleepers Shelter Society of which I am the Deputy Chairman.

Some years ago certain members of St. Peter's Church Young Men's Club on the suggestion of the Reverend Mr. Halward who is now the Chairman of the Society organized a series of street sleepers and found that about 2,000 destitute Chinese were sleeping in the streets of Hong Kong and Kowloon during the winter months.

At that time a distribution of blankets was made but no steps were taken to provide a shelter for the homeless.

This autumn, however, St. Peter's Church, in Des Voeux Road, West, has been kindly placed by the Hong Kong Government (which intends later to build on this site) at the disposal of our Society from the first of December this year until the end of March next year, as a shelter for the destitute.

During the past few weeks the Executive Committee of the Society, and especially the Hon. Secretary, Miss Ruby Mow Fung, and the Chairman of the Construction Committee, Mr. S. B. Tan, have been working out the numerous necessary details, so as to ensure the efficient running of the Shelter during the coming winter.

FIRST PROBLEM

The first problem which had to be considered was whether any charge should be made for accommodation, and after mature consideration, it was decided that, as the shelter was intended for those who were down and out, that no charge should be made.

Next there came the question of the hours of admission to and discharge from the Shelter, which were ultimately fixed at 6 to 9 p.m. and 5 to 7 a.m., respectively.

After that there was the question of the medical inspection of applicants, before they were admitted, and a sub-committee under Dr. W. Phoon has been appointed, and appeals are being made to various societies to help, but I regret that they have not yet been able to secure the necessary work, and therefore, most earnestly appeal to all Doctors of every race in this Colony to come in and help with this work of medical inspection, which is a most urgent matter as we shall open our shelter on the 1st of December.

We should like to have sufficient Doctors for this work, which will take place every evening from 6 to 9 p.m. to obviate the turn of each Doctor from coming round again too often.

After the applicant for admission has passed the medical examination he is registered and given a disc, which entitles him to move on to the washing-shed, on the outside of the North wall of the shelter, where hot water and soap and towels are provided, and also shelves whereon applicants can place their bundles while they wash.

Then the applicant passes on into the shelter through the North-East door, and a second disc is given to him in exchange for his first disc, to serve both as a receipt for his belongings which are stored during the night in a room provided for the purposes, and also as a voucher enabling him to claim the bunk whose number is on this second disc.

Before going out in the morning, he will give up this second disc.

Next we come to the Bunks themselves, the construction of which is in order to prevent the harbouring of insects, of iron, with movable boards which can easily be washed and disinfected by our coolies during the day-time.

For the sake of economy in cost and also in space the bunks are being constructed in vertical rows of three, and it is hoped that room will be found for a total number of 105 sleepers.

Then came the problem of what coverings to put on the beds. Blankets were discussed and horse-cloths but had promptly to be rejected both on the score of expense and also owing to difficulties of washing and disinfection, and it was ultimately decided to allow two gunny bags for each sleeper.

Messrs. Davis Bros. & Co. have very kindly spared the Society some initial expense by giving us 250 gunny bags. It is, however, obvious that, notwithstanding the kind offer of the Government to disinfest our gunny bags once a week, the Society must necessarily incur some considerable expense in the purchase of additional gunny bags, and I therefore most earnestly appeal to all per bag.

LOCAL POOR MAY BE HITSt. Vincent De Paul's Report

The annual report of the Society of St. Vincent de Paul which has just been issued reveals the difficulties with which the Society has met this year in their work of charity among the poor of Hongkong. The fear is expressed that in absence of the annual motor car draw this year (owing to the Government having revoked its permission) the funds of the Annual Bazaar, which is the principal source of income for the Society, will be very much lower. The street sale of roses has been fixed for December 1, and in view of the uncertain outlook for the coming year, a special appeal is being made to the generosity of the public. The following extract from the Society's Annual report will reveal their field of charity which may unfortunately much restricted in the future:—

The expenditure for the nine months ended September, 1933, was $5,831.50 as against $5,767.00 for the same period in 1932. The Society has also during the nine months expended $179.30 in providing shoes and clothing for poor children, and $36.90 for Medical Aid.

The above sum of $5,831.50 was expended in the maintenance of 162 families, comprising 217 persons, to whom assistance was given irrespective of race, nationality or creed. During the period review 1,317 visits were made to the Poor in their homes.

HOUSING ACCOMMODATION

Many of those who receive relief from the Society are aged poor who are unable to undertake even light home work, such as sewing. For these, and others whose special circumstances justify such an expenditure, the Society pays house rents. Among the latter are many who have lost their employment as a result of the present serious business depression. In some cases it is also found desirable to remove poor families, with grown up children, from small overcrowded premises in congested areas, which not only endanger the family's health but are also a source of grave moral danger for the children.

As already stated, the hours for admission to the shelter are between 6 p.m. and 9 p.m., after which latter hour no applicants will be admitted.

This will involve the Volunteer Workers of the Society being on duty between 5.45 p.m. and 9.15 p.m.

VOLUNTEERS WANTED

In addition to my above appeal for volunteers to undertake the medical inspection, I have now to appeal for a large number of volunteers women as well as men, to form a roster for the following purposes, namely:—

(I) To superintend in the washing-shed;
(II) To see to the placing of belongings of applicants, in the room inside the shelter provided for the purpose;
(III) To see that the sleepers occupy the right bunks in accordance with the number on the second disc;
(IV) Volunteers at first will also be needed to go out into the streets to inform the destitute persons of the existence of the shelter, and, if necessary, guide them to it.

Accordingly, in addition to the Doctors required to conduct the medical inspection, eight volunteers will be required to be on duty every night to perform the various duties just referred to, and accordingly a large staff of volunteers will be required, in order to assist in the other duties and to prevent each volunteer's turn from coming round too frequently.

I therefore, most strongly appeal for more volunteers for this work. If any one would like to volunteer for duty will be or she kindly apply to Miss R. Mowling, Messrs. Gilman and Co., Ltd., 4A Des Voeux Road, Central, for a form to be filled in.

A kitchen has been built in the compound to enable the necessary hot water for washing, and for making tea to be provided. No food is being supplied. Tea only is given.

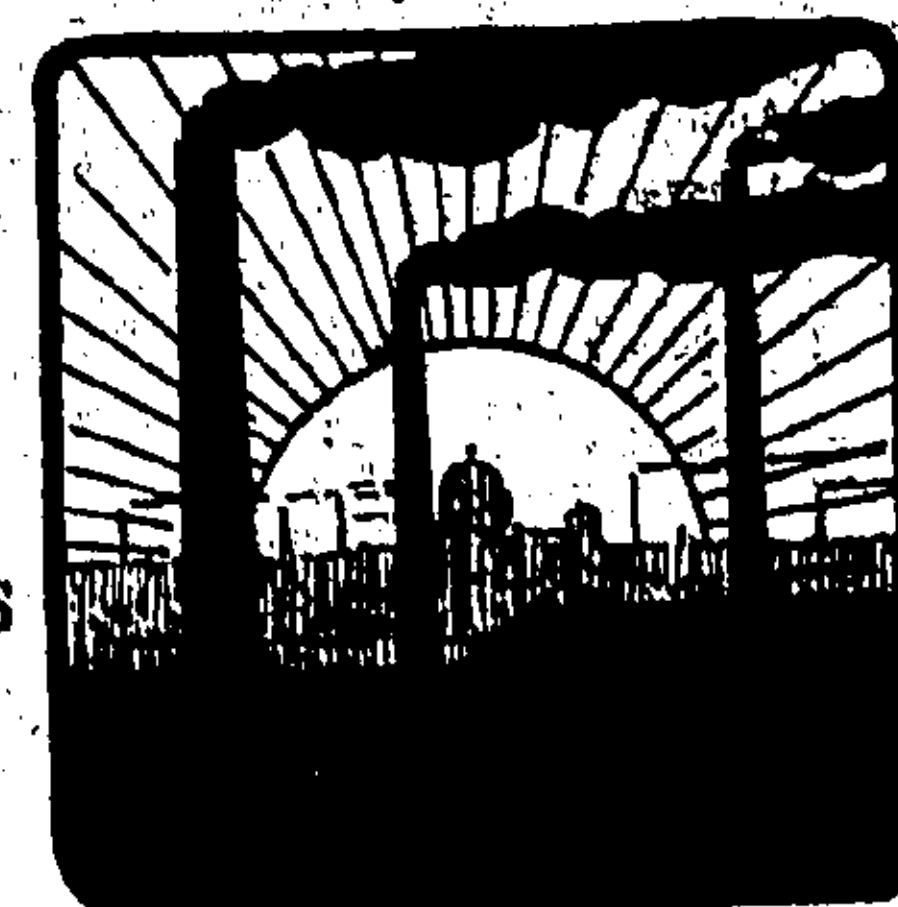

To remove risk of fire, no smoking is allowed inside the shelter. We are at present looking for a suitable shelter for women. The previous census taken years ago seemed to show that the number of destitute women sleeping in the streets was relatively small as compared with the men.

$5,000 REQUIRED

Of course the provision of such a shelter for women will involve the Society in extra expense, and in order to meet such a contingency and other possible contingencies, it is desired to raise a fund of $5,000, of which only about $1,500 has so far been subscribed. Further donations will therefore be gratefully received and should

No doubt some people will tell us that our Society is merely touching the fringe of a vast problem, but no doubt a similar remark was when the first free night shelter was started in the poorest of this Colony.
If an experiment is successful, we can enlarge our sphere of operations hereafter.
At all events the donors to our Society will have the satisfaction of knowing that they have been the means of alleviating a certain amount of suffering amongst the poorest of this Colony.

THE IRISH QUESTION

Like the proverbial country cousin who turns up without warning on the barest encouragement, the Irish situation seems on the point of its perennial visit. Without the Irish question the House of Commons would be the poorer by a sheaf of witty reminiscences, and, viewed in this light, I suppose we should appreciate such a ticklish problem and therefore welcome Mr. de Valera's appearance again. It is to be hoped that Mr. de Valera will try to carry through his three bills, now before the Irish Free State Parliament for the amendment of the constitution, with the same humour and wit that the late Mr. Timothy Healy brought to his achievements in the House of Commons, so that we may have good cause for commending his activities. Otherwise we may be hard put to find grounds for the justification of his continued animus towards inclusion in the British Commonwealth of Nations.

Mr. de Valera would like to see Ireland as an independent Republic, united and strong, with some form of association with the British Commonwealth in some circumstances and for some reasons, with a recognition of the King as the head of the association. The question swings on what Mr. de Valera means by "some circumstances" and "some reasons."

sons." Surely, with his idea of an Irish Republic as a separate nation, he could not mean such negligible advantages as preferential tariffs, trading facilities, protection in international controversies through the influence of Great Britain, actual protection in case of war, and assistance by our Civil and Consular services abroad. Mr. de Valera must surely mean other and weightier things in which he would be only too willing to reciprocate. With his strong opinions on freedom he would naturally not wish to be under any obligations.

The attitude of the House of Commons towards Ireland has always been misconstrued and no doubt Mr. Thomas' firm statement on the position of the United Kingdom in regard to the Irish developments will not be received in any more reasonable light. That he could take up no other stand is obvious in view of the repudiations of the Treaty of 1921 that have already happened. That Mr. de Valera has always been strenuously antipathetic towards this Treaty is quite clear but no revisions can rightly be made saving by agreement between the two countries concerned, and, by repeatedly altering it to suit himself whenever the spirit moved him, Mr. de Valera has definitely put himself in the wrong. Sympathy may be felt towards many of the aims of the Republican party, but in the eagerness of their new-found nationalism—which is nothing but their earlier nationalism in a new form and with an apparently easier rein—they have tended to lose sight of issues that lie on the other side of the wall and are inherent in their problem.

And meanwhile Mr. de Valera seems not in the least inspired by any vision of a strongly-welded British Commonwealth of Nations, enjoying common citizenship and rights, playing cricket in the sense of a fair give and take, and the opportunity of great and far-reaching influence in international affairs, especially in the cause of peace, which has been so earnest a desire of our policy since the war. A powerful British Commonwealth is the most powerful factor to-day in World Peace, but Mr. de Valera, apparently, would rather be cock of his own little mound, scratching here and there in pursuit of his own affairs, than to be a participant in any such splendid endeavour.

THE R.N. COLLEGE OSBORNE

To Be Demolished

The block of buildings in the grounds of Osborne, which formed the Royal Naval College, is to be demolished. Thus will pass practically all that remained in material form of the Osborne Scheme, conceived by Lord Selborne, and sponsored by Lord Fisher. In practice is revealed some good points and many defects. Modifications were introduced at an early stage and continued until there was precious little of the original scheme left. The conception of "common entry" was excellent in theory, but it came too late. At the back of it was the idea of reconciling, once and for all, the differences between the engineering class and the executive class. Those differences had virtually ceased to exist by the time the Osborne Scheme "got going." The products of Keyham and Dartmouth merged in perfect harmony. Each filled an essential place, and the question of status automatically settled itself. What the Osborne Scheme really did was to again raise this settled question and propose to deal with it on lines which in the general opinion of the Service would not stand the test of practice.

A SCHEME THAT FAILED The principle established a regime under which all cadets entered as potential "naval officers," without distinction. After entry they were to decide what they would be, and the result was that nearly all of them elected to be naval officers, which meant executive officers. So their lordships had to take powers to oblige necessary numbers to become engineers, or marines. The engineers dropped their old titles and were given executive ranks with the initial (E). A feature of the scheme was that, on reaching the rank of captain, the engineers would come into line with the executive in their eligibility for command. A few years ago the Admiralty gave the final "coup" to the lingering sham of common entry. They explained the necessity for "regularizing" the position before any captains (E) were made. To most people "regularizing" seemed but a synonym for breach of faith. However, with the scrapping of Osborne, the short-lived material relic of the Selborne Scheme, to-day we are back to the general conditions of three decades ago, with the striking differences in methods.

STEAMER IN DISTRESS

Seitan Maru Sends Out S.O.S. Call

An S.O.S. message was picked up in Hongkong at 5.30 p.m. yesterday to the effect that the s.s. Seitan Maru was in distress and wanted immediate assistance, her position being given as Lat. 26.03 N. and Long. 128.08 East.

An hour later a message was received by the local agents of the Shanghai Maru that she has picked up the S.O.S. call and was proceeding to the scene. Three motor launches have also been despatched from Kamsachima.

Up to a late hour last night no further messages were received, and all efforts to obtain details were unavailing as the Seitan Maru does not include Hongkong in her ports of call. According to the Lloyd's Shipping Register, the vessel was built in Osaka in 1919. She has a gross tonnage of 1244, and was formerly the Aizawa Maru. Her present owners are the Oginuma Kaisha Kabushiki Kaisha.

HELENA MAY CONCERT

An Enjoyable Programme

A delightful concert in the Helena May Institute yesterday afternoon gave many an opportunity of hearing not only some of the finest of the Colony's artists, in selections written by the well-known German and Scandinavian composers.

It would be hard to make any particular selections but Mrs. Womack's interpretation of "Two songs, one by Brahms and the other by Brahms in the first half of the programme was extremely well received by the audience.

Four songs by Mrs. Sanger, two by Schuman and two by Brahms also proved delightful and the added voice of Mr. Li Chor Chi made the finishing touch to the balancing of the programme.

Frau Ammann's piano solos showed wonderful technique and a deep understanding of Beethoven and Grieg themes.

Mrs. Kunis and Mr. Dudley Bartlett acted as accompanists for the soloists. The complete programme consisted of—

- Mrs. Sanger
 - (a) Du bist wie eine Blume Schuman.
 - (b) Mondnacht Schuman.
- Mrs. Womack
 - (a) Zueignung Strauss.
 - (b) Vergebliches Ständchen Brahms.
- Mr. Li Chor Chi
 - (a) On wings of song Mendelssohn.
 - (b) Si vous l'aviez compris Denjaer.
- Frau Ammann
 - (a) Adagio Cantabile Beethoven.
 - (b) Nocturne Ich Liebe Dich Grieg.
- Mrs. Sanger
 - (a) Kommt dir Manchmae in den Sinn-Gipsy Love Brahms.

LOCAL AND GENERAL

One case of enteric fever was reported from Old Kowloon yesterday.

We understand that the Peak Hotel is choco-bloc. In spite of the depression, too. This speaks very well for the management by Mrs. Dover, who we understand will soon be relinquishing her post.

Her large circle of friends will be interested to learn that after an absence of eight years, Madame Loti Gordon returned to Hong Kong by the P. & O. s.s. Ranchi yesterday. She is writing books and music on China and, prior to coming here, she had a very successful broadcasting tour in the Dutch East Indies where she was congratulated and publicly thanked by the President of the Batavia section, Mr. A. J. Jansen. We understand Madame Gordon is a broadcasting expert.

EXPLORER IN THE COLONY

Dr. J. F. Rock on Conte Verde

Bound for a year's stay in Europe, during which he will spend Christmas in his native Vienna, which he has not re-visited for 13 years, Dr. Joseph F. Rock is passing through the Colony in the Conte Verde en route for England, where he is to publish as the fruits of years of lone investigations in remote Yunnan the first book ever produced on the Nakhli—the "Black People" inhabiting the north-west section of the province on the Tibet and Szechuan borders.

After 12 years arduous research work in the West of China—on behalf of Harvard University, Berkeley University, California, the National Geographic Society and the United States Department of Agriculture—Dr. Rock regards himself as "too old for living any longer in the wilds, a month's journey from a physician." He still foresees much useful work to be done in China, however, and on his return will reassemble his Yunnan entourage, possibly in Peking. Agricultural adviser to the Provincial Government of Yunnan for a number of years, he has carried on extensive botanical explorations, but throughout the past three years he has devoted himself mainly to translating the extensive literature of the Hihlin tribe.

DEVIL WORSHIP RITES

Originally a branch of the great Chiang race, who migrated into the south-west province 2,000 years ago, this tribe now extends over the frontiers of Tibet and Szechuan. Solely as agricultural people, some 200,000 of them survive, to-day. They possess two types of writing, one pictographic and the other syllabic akin to the ancient Chinese writing, though the spoken language differs radically from Chinese. The bulk of their literature is connected with the tribe's unique religion, this region being the only place in the world where the pre-Buddhistic cult of Tibet has live on its undistorted form. The Bon religion, as it is known, still exists in Tibet, but in a debased version, whereas the "Black People," who are of Tibeto-Burman stock, have never come under the influence of either Yellow or Red Lamas.

Shamanism or devil worship characterises the votaries of this religion without temples, and at the native house where he lived as the only white man among the tribe Dr. Rock was frequently surrounded by a dozen sorcerers, and made film records of their weird ceremonies, which are always performed in the open air. In ancient days shepherds in the grasslands of the Kokonor, the Nakhli are a warlike race, and have had some famous kings, one of whom invaded and conquered a large part of Tibet. Dr. Rock enlisted the services of the tribesmen in his explorations throughout his period of 12 years in the West—including a great trek overland from Yunnan to the head-waters of the Yellow River in South-West Mongolia—and always found them most faithful. The Nakhli live within the great western loop of the Yangtze, but there is also a northern branch, calling themselves the Hihlin, who have no written language, though they speak a similar dialect, and observe the same ceremonies as the "Black People." They chant the same texts, but in this case from generation to generation.

TO PUBLISH DICTIONARY.

The important work which is to be published by Messrs. Kegan Paul will be in three volumes, one geographical and religious, the second dealing with tribal literature—which embraces texts on history and ancestor worship—and the third a dictionary of the written language.

NAVY'S DEADLY NEW SHELLS

Thickest Plates No Defence

GUN BEATS ARMOUR

It is now permissible to give details of the new 16in. shells, suitable for the guns of the Nelson and the Rodney, now in process of manufacture, and of the 15in projectiles used by our other capital ships, writes Mr. Hector Bywater.

If the tests which have been carried out are a criterion, the gun would appear, for the time being at least, to have beaten the armour defence, and it is very probable that battleships of the future will have to carry even thicker armour than is now fitted.

LESSON OF JUTLAND

Earl Jellicoe, it may be recalled, has attributed the indecisive result of Jutland in large measure to the indifferent performance of our armour-piercing projectiles then in use.

This type of shell would, he says, "with oblique impact at battle range, break up while holding a certain thickness of plate, and the shell could not, therefore, reach the vitals of the enemy's ships. A shell of the new type and calibre produced in 1917 would, at the same oblique impact and range, pass whole through a plate of double the thickness without exploding, and could, therefore, with delay action fuse, penetrate to the magazines of a capital ship.

Had our ships possessed the new type of A.P. shell at Jutland, many of the enemy's vessels, instead of being only damaged, would probably not have been able to reach port."

Infinitely more deadly than these improved shells, are the 16in and 15in thunderbolts now being supplied to the battle fleet. In actual tests at the proof butts they have passed clean through hard-faced armour up to 16in in thickness, not merely when striking at right angles, but with the plate inclined at 15, 20, and even 30 degrees.

QUITE UNBROKEN

Further the giant shell passes through this massive plate quite unbroken, with bursting charge and fuse intact. It would, therefore, explode with devastating violence in the interior of an enemy's ship. And I may add that very few battleships have 16in armour over their vitals.

In another test one of the new shells, fired at a velocity of about 1,750ft per second, equivalent to 1,200 m.p.h., penetrated a 12in armour plate in 0.0039 of a second, and was recovered intact. In perforating the plate the energy absorbed was equal to that of lifting 25,000 tons a foot above the ground, and the projectile had to punch out 720lb, or 14 cubic feet of metal, in the four-thousandth part of a second.

ten languages. Hundreds of books have been translated by Dr. Rock, and it is believed that the only other work accomplished in this field so far is the translation of one manuscript by a Frenchman, M. Bacot.

Dr. Rock, who on his first entering the country travelled overland from Bangkok to Chinese Turkestan, plans to write a plant geography of Western China. As a result of his explorations he has added in introducing many new varieties of rhododendrons into America (of which he is now a citizen), and Europe. He claims that there are about 1,200 different varieties of this plant in Western China and Eastern Tibet.

Nearly 600 volumes of Nakhli literature have been forwarded by Dr. Rock to the Congressional Library, Washington.

GOLD PLAN TO BE GIVEN FULL TRIAL

AMERICA'S SHREWDEST POLITICAL STRATEGIST

Inflation Cannot Come Too Soon

New York, November 16.

President Roosevelt intends to give the Gold Plan a full and unfettered trial, assisted exclusively by sympathetic officials, and Washington correspondents hail the President as "probably America's shrewdest and fertilest political strategist."

Mr. Dean Acheson is alleged to have been very surprised when he learned of his resignation and says he is no more doubtful of the wisdom regarding the Gold Plan than others who are remaining in the service, on account of persons' devotion to President Roosevelt.

Mr. Acheson, a friend of J. P. Morgan and the other bankers who denounced the Reconstruction Finance Corporation purchases of gold as illegal. Mr. Morgenthau is an intimate friend of President Roosevelt and an ex-pupil of Professor Warton of the Brain Trust.

WALL STREET DUMBOUNDED

Official comment on yesterday's developments are not forthcoming but Senator Harrison holds that "inflation cannot come too soon," while Senator Thomas is convinced that when the dollar is devalued fifty cents it can be stabilised through an International Agreement and silver may be used to enlarge its monetary basis. Wall Street was dumounded and the financial editor of the "Herald Tribune" declares there is no prospect of halting the flight from the dollar until the gold policy is completely reversed.

The liquidation of the Morgan Bond Pool is believed to reflect Wall Street fears of inflation. The flight from the dollar is hastened by a report that Britain is considering an Emergency Legislation to keep out the United States. Refugee Capital. The New York American opines that the behaviour of the dollar does not necessarily indicate the impotence of the gold policy because the Reconstruction Finance Corporation could still withdraw substantial amounts of dollars through the sale of gold abroad. Mr. Leith Ross has sailed for home, pessimistic regarding the possibility of a War Debts settlement and also regarding the United States financial outlook.—Reuter.

Break In Cabinet.

New York, November 16. The first break in President Roosevelt's Cabinet, which is regarded as the collapse of the sound money bloc, has initiated a crop of reports of dissension in the ranks of the United States Government, including the rumoured resignations of Professor Sprague, one of the President's advisers, and Mr. Eugen Black, Governor of the Federal Reserve.

The retirements of the Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. William H. Woodin, and the Under-Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Dean Acheson, have created but little interest on Wall Street, although Mr. Woodin's withdrawal is considered to be facilitating a more vigorous currency campaign by Mr. W. H. Woodin who was regarded by the French as a brake to their ambitions.

Washington reports state that Mr. Henry Morgenthau has proclaimed his unwavering support of President Roosevelt's policy of buying gold at home and abroad in the hope of raising commodity prices.

According to the New York "Sun" Mr. Morgenthau favours having the dollar's gold content and is opposed to early establishment of the dollar.—Reuter.

FRENCH REACTION

Paris, November 16. In French circles, Mr. Woodin's exit is regarded as a success for the inflationists, who have regarded him as a brake to their ambitions.

The French money market is unaffected, and the present action of the British Exchange Equalisation Fund is appreciated as maintaining that stability of sterling which is of far greater importance to Paris than the dollar.—Reuter.

WOODIN'S "LEAVE OF ABSENCE"

Washington, Nov. 16. The "leave of absence" granted to the United States Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. William H. Woodin, is regarded as a purely face-saving device for President Roosevelt, who now becomes the real head of the Treasury. His henchman, the well-known financier, Mr. Henry Morgenthau, is not expected to seriously oppose the President's financial plans. Official circles are of the opinion that the Under-Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Dean Acheson, has resigned voluntarily to make room for Mr. Morgenthau, but unofficially, his resignation is attributed to his opposition to President Roosevelt's currency policy.—Reuter.

BRITISH POLICY IN CHINA

Letter to the 'Times'

London, November 16. Mr. William Nunn, M.P., in a letter to the Times, comments on the desirability of ending the British Legation's splendid isolation of Peking and the residence for the Minister in Nanking of Shanghai where he may reside for six months every year. Stressing the Government's vagueness regarding the debate in the House of Lords, on China, he says that if our policy is to succeed, it must be framed in China with facts as the Minister sees it, not as imagined ten thousand miles away. The Minister must keep in close touch with the leaders in Nanking, and not be a veiled personality obtaining information and forming conclusions second hand.—Reuter.

DISARMAMENT QUESTION

Discussed by British Cabinet

London, Nov. 16. The Cabinet held two meetings yesterday, and reviewed the Disarmament situation.

While the Government is in touch with the French, Italian, United States and, it is believed, the German Governments, with a view to finding means of bringing back Germany to the Disarmament Conference and the League of Nations, opinion in ministerial circles is believed, at present, to be turning from Geneva in the direction of preliminary talks between individual nations, especially Germany and France.

London is mentioned as a possible venue for the discussions. Rumours of current Cabinet differences in regard to Sir John Simon's handling of the Disarmament problem are rife, but the report that Sir John Simon will resign is not regarded seriously in responsible quarters.—Reuter.

CONCESSIONS MAY BE MADE TO GERMANY.

London, Nov. 16. A determination to prevent the Disarmament situation from drifting was evident at yesterday's Cabinet meeting.

It is believed that Germany, through diplomatic channels, has given a fresh assurance of her goodwill and authoritative British opinion is moving strongly in the direction of practical concessions to the German viewpoint.

Intergovernmental conversations are to be continued with the immediate objective of gaining a rapprochement of Franco-German opinion preliminary to general agreement.

A meeting of representatives of the principal Powers at Rome is regarded at present as more likely than a conference in London.—Reuter.

TWO CABINET MEETINGS.

London, Nov. 16. A meeting of the Cabinet was held yesterday morning, primarily for the purpose of reviewing the work of the new session.

A further meeting was held in the evening when it is understood the Disarmament situation was again under review.—British Wireless Service.

MR. HENDERSON'S COMMUNIQUE

London, Nov. 15. The President of the Disarmament Conference, Mr. Arthur Henderson, after consultation with the Vice-President and the rapporteur, has issued a communique stating that the rapporteurs entrusted with specific tasks by the Bureau at its meeting of 11th November, found themselves confronted with difficulties, the settlement of which appears to require a previous solution of certain political problems, and that they will be in a position to hand in their reports only when they have consulted the heads of the delegations who are not at present at Geneva.—British Wireless.

answer on July 11, when he said they included the general asset of exporting countries and the adherence of a substantial majority of the producers, and also that the scheme should be administratively practicable.—Reuter.

GERMANY'S DESIRE

For A Peaceful Settlement

Paris, November 16.

The Petit Parisien publishes an alleged confidential document sent to German agents abroad by the Central Propaganda Bureau in Berlin. The document, whose authenticity is "guaranteed" by the Petit Parisien, instructs agents to educate public opinion to adopt a favourable attitude towards Germany's claims.

The final objective is the recuperation of all territories round Germany, harbouring the German Minorities and the restitution of colonies.

The present foreign-policy is analogous to that from 1910 to 1913 and the irreconcilable adversary is France.

All efforts must be directed to upsetting Franco-British relations. The document points out that all German claims can only with difficulty be satisfied by negotiations but Germany is not yet ready to obtain satisfaction by other means, for outside consumption must be forcibly stressed and Germany desires nothing but a peaceful settlement.—Reuter.

GERMAN-POLISH PROBLEMS

Direct Negotiations to Commence

Berlin, Nov. 16. As a result of the conversations between Chancellor Hitler, in the presence of Baron von Neurath, and the new Polish Minister, Herr Joseph Lipski, an agreement has been reached bearing importantly on European peace.

An official statement declares that the conversations have established a full agreement by both Governments to take up direct negotiations on all German-Polish problems.

In order to consolidate the peace of Europe they will renounce the use of force in adjusting mutual relations.—Reuter.

Result of Conspiracy to Fraud Trial

London, Nov. 16. The trial of Martin Coles Harman and the other directors of the Chosen Corporation, charged with conspiracy to defraud shareholders by means of transactions with Japanese subsidiary companies, ended at Old Bailey yesterday.

Harman was found guilty by the jury on twenty-one counts in the indictment and sentenced to eighteen months in the second division.

B. F. Conigrave was found guilty of conspiracy, with a recommendation to leniency and was sentenced to six months in the second division.

H. J. Pounds, chairman of the Corporation, and A. G. Chingate were found not guilty.—Reuter.

HOME RUGBY

Hampshire Beat Middlesex

London, November 16. Hampshire County Rugby champions for the last two seasons, narrowly beat Middlesex by 9 points to 7 at Bournemouth yesterday in the Championship.

Eastern Counties drew with Sussex at Ipswich, each side scoring two tries, and Kent beat Surrey by 20 points to 19 in the other two county games.

Cambridge University were also engaged in a close match, beating Guy's Hospital by 8 points to 6.—Reuter.

RESTRICTION OF RUBBER

Britain Not To Attend Conference.

London, Nov. 15. In the House of Commons this afternoon, replying to questions by Mr. Rankin, Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister said there was no question of rubber producers attending the rubber conference to be held at Batavia on November 22.

The conference was confined to officials in the Dutch East Indies.

CHEN MING SHU

Establishes A New Government

(From Our Special Correspondent)

Canton, Nov. 16.

Press dispatches from Foochow stated that the independent government of General Chen Ming Shu will be formally established on November 20. General Chen will be the Commander-in-Chief of troops in Fukien, Kweichow, Kwangsi, Yunnan and Kiangsi.

The policies of the new-born government is to resist foreign invaders and to bring peace to the country. General Li Chai Shum, former military ruler of Kwangtung, will arrive in Foochow tomorrow and will be given an important position in the new government.

It is also said that the Kuomintang in Fukien will be repudiated in favour of a People's Party, as the leaders there hold the view that the Kuomintang has existed long enough without accomplishing any good result.

Supporting General Chen Ming Shu is General Chiang Kwang Nai, Chairman of the Fukien Provincial Government. General Tsai Ting Kai, officer commanding the 19th Route Army, is also loyal to General Chen but is not enthusiastic of an independent government. General Chen is utilising the influence of the 19th Route Army to invade neighbouring provinces not friendly to his cause.

Canton, Nov. 16. General Yu Han Mou, commanding officer of the first Kwangtung Army, will remain in Canton in order to that he may have his foot trouble attended to. Yesterday he went to the Pearl River Sanatorium for treatment and later returned to his home in Tungshan for a rest.

According to General Yu's aide-de-camp, the situation in South Kiangsi is peaceful, hence there is no immediate necessity for the General to return to the front. He said that the Reds are spreading rumours of their southward drive, but that is only propaganda.—Central Press.

Yiu, who is suing Lily Kao also a taxi dancer, for two thousand dollars damages for alleged assault, told the Court, "I am a citizen of Manchukuo." The court was stirred by the statement and the attorney appearing for the defendant demanded an immediate dismissal of the action maintaining that Manchukuo citizens are not entitled to protection of the law.

The case was adjourned for judgment on the 18th inst. Yiu's statement was the subject of editorial comments in Chinese papers who join in denouncing her as having a "slavish instinct" by proclaiming Manchukuo citizenship.—Reuter.

EXCITING FINISH TO INTERPORT LIKELY

MALAYANS FIGHT UPHILL BATTLE IN FINE STYLE

R. N. Hamilton And His "Deputy" Bat Well

The Malayan cricket team showed they were real fighters on the second day of their match with Shanghai when they recovered themselves twice during the course of the day with the result that Shanghai are now faced with the none-too-easy task of getting 172 runs to win in the fourth innings and on a wicket which has already shown signs of crumbling.

The Shanghai team failed to take advantage of the good start their opening batsmen gave them, for, starting the day with 107 for 2, they only managed to add another 106 for the next eight wickets.

Malaya then went out to bat for the second time and thanks mainly to their captain, R. N. Hamilton (60) and his deputy, V. Croome (36), they went on to score 198.

The game will be resumed this morning and it would seem that an exciting finish is more than likely. Much will depend on how the earlier Shanghai batsmen will shape while Malaya will look to Willis, Gill, Jonklass and Speldewinde to get the side out for under 171 runs to give them their fourth victory in as many matches here.

SHANGHAI TO GET 172 FOR WIN

Booth and Madar, the overnight not outs, went out to resume Shanghai's innings at 11.05 a.m. when Jonklass started the attack from the Naval Yard end. Three minutes after play was resumed, the 110 went up, Gill being the bowler at the other end. Booth soon got his twenty while his partner reached his thirty about the same time. One run later, however, he was bowled by Jonklass who sent down a beautiful ball to just take the bats—120-3-31. The out-going batsman had batted for 85 minutes.

Simpson then filled the breach and he played the rest of the over without scoring and then he saw Booth putting Gill away for a four. Scoring however, was very slow though the bowling cannot be said to have been very deadly and it was not until he had been at the wickets for 52 minutes that Booth reached his 30. This batsman finally sent the 130 up (in 136 minutes) when he carted a full toss from Jonklass to the Chater Road boundary. It took the batsmen twenty minutes to bring the total from 120 to 130.

Willis then came on for Jonklass. Runs still came very slowly and it was not till twelve minutes after that the 140 was sent up, while Simpson took 23 minutes to reach his ten.

With the total at 147, Shanghai lost another wicket when Booth stepped in front of a straight one from Willis and was given marching orders. He had scored 39 in 70 minutes, the total then being 147. Leach was in next, his first run being a single off Willis. The 150 was then signalled and one run later another wicket fell, Simpson being out to a catch by Eu off Gill. He had collected 13 runs in 35 minutes.

Young Madar went out to join his captain and opened his account with a single off Gill. Leach offered an easy chance off this bowler in the next ball but Hamilton, who was fielding at mid-off and the bowler both failed to get to it in time. In the next over Leach hit Willis for a four, following this with a beautiful late cut which also found the boundary. Two balls later he shaped to play a ball on the leg and missed, and no little surprise was caused when the umpire upheld the stumper's appeal for a catch. It was bad luck on Leach who had got his ten in 14 minutes, especially as he appeared to be just getting set. The total was 161-6-10, and the innings had been in progress 158 minutes.

Jenkins joined Madar and in the second over survived a very confident appeal for a catch behind the stumps. Malaya met with further success when Gill got Madar for one. Eu bringing off a good catch at forward short-leg. The outgoing batsman had only one while the total was 166, the innings having been in progress for 176 minutes while Madar had batted twelve minutes for his 1.

Isaacs joined Jenkins and in the second over survived a very confident appeal for a catch behind the stumps. Malaya met with further success when Gill got Madar for one. other four by. Hamilton brought his own score to forty and the total to 160. Then Leach came on for Wilson and his third ball was hit to the Naval Yard end boundary by "R.N." who followed it up with a single.

HAMILTON IN FORM. Willis shaped very well against Isaacs and playing him with plenty of confidence, late cut, him for a four and got a single off the next ball to reach his ten. Hamilton showed excellent form with the bat, hitting the loose "uns while he placed the better fellows cleverly for short sharp snells. The 170 was signalled in 157 minutes and Willis got two fours off consecutive balls from Leach to send up the 180 in 160 minutes. A single off the same bowler brought his total to 20 while Hamilton got a single to reach his half-century in 55 minutes. Willis was bowled by the next ball and thus the ninth wicket partnership came to an end. Thirty-seven runs were added during this time and Willis claimed twenty of these.

Speldewinde then joined his captain who took a four and a single off consecutive balls from Isaacs to send up the 190 in 164 minutes. In the next over, Hamilton skied the ball Simpson failed to get to it to give him two runs. A third was forthcoming when the fieldman overthrew the ball and then Speldewinde opened his account with a single to give Hamilton the bowling again. Two more runs were added to the total when the Malayan skipper scored off the next ball and two balls later over was called.

There was some good running between the wickets at this stage as both the batsmen were anxious to get as many as possible but the end came in the next over when Jenkins brought off an excellent catch to dismiss Hamilton who batted like a champion for 74 minutes, getting 60 runs during his stay at the wickets.

Thus, after a poor start, Malaya recovered in great style to set Shanghai 172 for a win.

LUXURIOUS GOLF

I don't remember ever having seen stick-seats so much as vogue on fashionable golf courses as they've been this year. Sometimes it looks a little comical to see a young stalwart, smite a 250-yard drive from a tee, hand the club to his caddie, take the stick-seat in exchange, and stalk after his ball. But it comes in handy when a course is "playing slow," with waits between shots. Perhaps its funniest use is when admiring or faithful wives and cousins and uncles and aunts seat themselves in a row beside the sand-boxes on the tees and enjoy the players' performance from the stalls, as it were. They can carry a lot of weight, these stick-seats. But I wonder if they're very good for the tees.

HOME FOOTBALL

Series Of Surprises

RALLY BY SHEFFIELD UNITED

(BY J. A. H. CATTON)

London, Oct. 25. Association football can be just as fantastic and quaint as the great game of summer. The results of yesterday's encounters provide strong evidence to confirm this conclusion. Not one of the clubs in the lowest position of the charts concerning their different tournaments was beaten yesterday. Sheffield United visited the quarters of their neighbours, the old Wednesday, and won. This was their first win since September 9, five games having been lost in succession. The United have become anxious and are looking round to reinforce their ranks. A victory over the Wednesday should prove a strong tonic to the Bramall Lane eleven, who have urgent need of another Dunne and backs who know the value of position in defence. Again Bury overcame their friends from the Manchester United camp. True it is that Manchester United have not realised the hopes of their team-builders, but Bury's prior win was on August 28.

The conflicts in the Second Division were so keen and close that five games were drawn and five decided by the advantage of one goal. On such a day Bury succeeded and Port Vale, men of might who have all been secured for about £1,000, advance to the head of the table. Curiousities abound, for Bristol City, who have never won, shared the points with Crystal Palace who are within touch of the leaders of their group, Queen's Park Rangers. Again Rotherham United, down in the depths, drew with Tranmere Rovers who are placed next to the most consistent club of the day—Chesterfield. Such a series of results show that no team need ever despair and abandon hope.

Sheffield United were the only visitors who could win a First Division game, and they played their new back, C. E. Wilkinson, who was obtained from Leeds United, probably because this well-built young man could not get a place in the strongest eleven of his club, owing to the reliable co-operation of the brothers Milburn. Wednesday could not master the reinforced back division, although it must be said that the shooting of their opponents was not good. The United were ingenious in attack, quicker and more skilful in a fast and exciting game. Both goalkeepers were excellent, the only goal being got by Williams, the little wing forward that United obtained from Bristol. A fine ball player, he never rendered his club better service than yesterday, when a win was urgent.

There were other contests between neighbours, and probably none more sternly fought out than that between Newcastle United and Sunderland. The forwards of the Tyne-side have been disappointing this season. Their mediocre attacks and weak finishing have been ascribed to the absence of H. McMenamy who has been injured. The line has not moved in unison. Their forwards did not decide this great match, for both goals came from the foot of Weaver, their renowned left half-back. His drives decided the issue. Sunderland are, however, on their general form the finest side in the far North. They played well. Save in marksmanship they were the better balanced team yesterday, but Newcastle took their few opportunities and were always eager to test the Sunderland keeper. Birmingham and Wolverhampton Wanderers had a hard struggle at St. Andrews ground. The defenders prevailed. The Wanderers were possibly the more crafty. The one solace of Birmingham was that Roberts, a local recruit who has just come into this class, was not overawed in his first big match. His display inspired hope for his future.

West Bromwich Albion, even without Carter, their talented inside-right, were far too powerful and sure in shooting for Stoke City, who had the uncommon experience for them of forfeiting five goals. Goals in plenty are not expected from Stoke, but the defence they formed last season has done well in the higher grade. But Bechill, their left-back, turned a ball into his own goal, and Spencer, the other back, headed a ball to W. G. Richardson, who realised the value of this mishap. Probably John would have been able to prevent these goals had the backs given him room and left him to his resource. Stoke could never recover, and Sandford, the sturdy inside-left of Albion, forced two more goals. Sale at length managed to beat Pearson, but Wood restored the simple lead of four goals in the last minute. In their last two matches at home West Bromwich have scored five times.

Aston Villa who lacked Blair and Gibson, had a tantalising experience on the ground of Manchester City. Their display in the open game was excellent, but their shots were all held by Langford, who was never in better form. The Villa forwards were capable of overplaying the men of Manchester, but in the last minute Marshall registered his second goal of the season and won.

Two of the London clubs hold the foremost positions in the highest division and are followed by two Yorkshire rivals. Tottenham Hotspur could not win at Everton, but from their point of view they did the next best thing in making a draw. The game was artistic, the forwards being bright and busy and the goalkeepers invincible for a time. At length White was able to beat Nicholls by utilising a centre from Stein. In the second half W. Evans equalised by taking a pass from Hall and netting. There were two occasions when Everton appealed for a penalty-kick for defenders handling the ball, but the referee did not enforce the extreme punishment and Tottenham halved the spoils.

Arsenal defeated Leicester City by two goals, but the game as a whole was not calculated to arouse enthusiasm, as there was far too much short passing and close tackling. The half-backs on each side were tremendous workers. Both teams had periods in which they were dominant, but Arsenal alone could score. The first goal was due to Dunne, who turned the ball to Bastin, whose centre was deflected for a corner-kick. When this was taken Dunne headed the ball down into the net. He also obtained the second point when a pass from Bastin touched a defender and went to Dunne, whose low, fast shot beat McLaren. These were Dunne's first successes for Arsenal, but he has been a splendid provider for his mates. Chelsea had little chance of overcoming Blackburn Rovers at Ewood, for the Lancashire club had put on three goals before the interval. Gibson and Gallacher did well and scored in the second half, but Bruton decided the issue. Chelsea cannot fall lower than at present. Now the work of restoration should begin.

Leeds United, one of the wonder teams of the past year, just scratched Portsmouth, but this was a fatal scratch. Portsmouth were reduced to ten men by the retirement of Bagley, who was trying to fill the place of the injured Eason. Then it was that Fowler scored. The game was very strenuous. Leeds won by their defence. At Derby the spectators were convinced that Huddersfield had a magnificent defence. McLean, for the visitors, kicked the ball out of the hands of the goalkeeper and scored, and only a strong thrust by Bowers, who beat off three adversaries, enabled his club to draw. Liverpool could not hold the vanguard of Middlesbrough, who won their third consecutive victory. The revival of Cammell has been a deciding factor. Although Bradshaw, Liverpool's lusty centre half-back, haunted him, Cammell got two goals: the first being a brilliant piece of individualism. For Ferguson to follow his example was easy.

The Second Division matches drew large crowds, especially in London, where Brentford and Fulham, and Millwall and West Ham could not be separated. Equality reigned. In the first half at Craven Cottage Brentford were supreme. The tables were turned in the later stage, and Fulham scored by the aid of Lambert, who crowned the manoeuvres of Gibbons and Finch. But Fulham erred, and a penalty-kick forced them to yield a point. At New Cross, Millwall gained a lead of two goals through the skill of Fishlock. Victor Watson reduced this advantage, and another penalty-kick, taken by Barrett, enabled West Ham to take a point. On such occasions it is well to see penalty-kicks converted.

Blackpool and Bolton Wanderers, with all their scheming and team-building, could not score, but two young men gained great victories for their clubs. Drake was the effective marksmen for Southampton. Nolan, once of Preston, gave Port Vale a fine win, and placed his club at the top of the table. It is a long time since Queens Park Rangers headed the Old Southern League, but they look like coming to the fore again. In their last five matches they have played very well, and owe a great deal to Blackman, who is shooting accurately. Bamford has come to life again, and registered with four fatal shots for Wrexham yesterday. Trannmere and Barnsley follow, but Chesterfield have not scored one point since September 2. They have clever and young forwards.

HUSBAND USES HAMMER IN FIT OF JEALOUSY

Woman Denies Marriage In Court

Ruling that whether a man was married to a woman or not it gave him no right to strike her with a sledge hammer, Mr.
Wynne Jones sentenced Lee Hong to a fine of seventy five dollars or six weeks imprisonment in the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday for assaulting Lee San—a coolie woman the accused was also bound over for one year in the sum of $250.

Dr. Court was the first witness called. He stated that the woman was suffering from a fracture of the skull as well as other cuts and bruises. Asked if the injuries could have been inflicted with a hammer which was exhibited he said that it was quite possible.

Mr. Denny who appeared for the defence asked if a fall could not have produced the injuries and was told that while it was possible it was highly unlikely.

Lee Sam, the complainant was then called and informed the court that she first met accused in Ki Un Chow and he offered to take her to the city where her parents lived, saying that he knew them. She went with him and eventually found herself in Hongkong. On arriving in the Colony, the accused forced her to live with him, threatening her with death if she refused. Eventually she left him and went to work as a stone breaker. The defendant came to the place where she was employed on October 26, and asked her to either let him sell her or to marry him. She again refused and he picked up a hammer and struck her. She fell to the ground and lost consciousness.

Upon cross-examination she vehemently denied ever having been married to him.

Ngai Loi, a stonecutter who worked with the complainant, was called to give evidence and stated that he saw the accused hit her with the hammer. Questioned as to how long he had known Lee Sam and why he had volunteered to give testimony, he said that he had known her six days previous to the assault and that he had not come of his own free will but was dragged there by a red-headed constable.

Mr. Wynne Jones: "I am sorry you have been inconvenienced, but thank you."

Alexander Black, a driver, employed by the Dairy Farm and the man who caught the accused when he was running from the scene of his crime, told of the seizure of the prisoner and the discovery of the stone breaking hammer in the prisoner's right hand.

A confession made by the defendant stating that he had hit the complainant with a rock was read by a police interpreter and after Mr. Denny's had addressed the magistrate in the course of which he submitted it was just a little family tiff and that the prisoner should be bound over and released, Lee Hong was called to testify on his own behalf.

He claimed that the woman was his wife and that he had bought her up-country, paying one-hundred and eighty dollars.

The defendant further added that he had brought her to Hongkong upon her own expressed wish because of her great love for him and that on the day of the alleged assault he had heard she was unfaithful, and he had gone to her place of employment to come home with him. Words proved fruitless and when he tried to drag her away she fell and he also toppled over striking a rock with his hand which bounced up and hit her on the head. Some other men came on the scene and as they appeared very angry he picked up the hammer for protection and fled. He then told of his subsequent capture.

At this point Mr. Denny tried to prove by a witness that the complainant and defendant were married but His Worship ruled that because a Chinese lived with a woman it did not imply that she was his wife and stated that in any case the accused had no right to have struck her.

Sentence was then passed.

DRIFTWOOD

By The Beachcomber

When night has wrapped the busy harbour in her sombre cloak and the glimmering lights of the tall water, romance fills the air, and thoughts so drifting across the seas of imaginations.
The beachcomber visited the Empress of Russia last evening and in a secluded corner found a discarded souvenir. The discovery turned fancy rife: "What was its tale? Why was it discarded?"

The arrival of the Empress boat yesterday brought little news.
The appearance on duty of the fifth officer, however, paid a high tribute both to his own physical stamina and the surgical skill of the ship's doctor. When the Empress was enroute from Canada and just off the Aleutian Islands, this officer was found to be suffering from an acute appendicitis and Dr. Kelly, the ships surgeon, operated immediately. It is now less than a fortnight since this member of the crew parted with the troublesome portion of his anatomy and he is up and about his labours. Maybe this is what is meant by "intestinal fortitude."

A real old sea dog received congratulations from his many friends when Captain Grierson of the s.s.
Hydrangea celebrated his fiftieth birthday yesterday.
Captain Grierson came to the Orient at the age of twenty-five and has been serving in the Hydrangea almost ever since. For the last seven years he has been in Command playing between Hongkong and Swatow, and is reputed to be one of the most capable pilots in the East. He was born in New Zealand.

Coolies spent a diverting morning at Kowloon dock yesterday fishing for a hand car that had gone over the side of the pier.
Whether the Chinese responsible for its leaving the rails had become imbued with the idea of this much discussed Kowloon-Hongkong under water transportation service, or if it was just careles-ness on someone's part, remains to be determined.

A most novel method of smuggling opium was disclosed by the revenue officials recently when they discovered a Chinese calmly walking off a Canton steamer, wearing under his trousers an athletic support full of narcotics.

BRITISH PLANES SATISFACTORY

That British aircraft constructors are fully qualified to produce really fast mailplanes is proved by the performance of several recently from British factories.
For example, in the Boulton-Paul P.64 mail carrier this country possesses a craft in which long range, high economical cruising speed and ample safety margin are combined in a way not surpassed by the best comparable craft built elsewhere. Its maximum attainable level speed, on the power of two Bristol "Pegas-us" motors, is 197 miles an hour, and normal cruising speed about 175 m.p.h., with a load of a thousand pounds of mail, a crew of two or three men, and fuel sufficient for non-stop journeys of 1,250 miles in still air. And several craft due to take the air within the next few months will attain cruising speeds of 145 miles an hour and upwards on relatively moderate expenditure of power. With the impetus of a real high-speed policy for air
